THE PANEUIL HALL ADDRESS. The Negre Suffrage Question—The Policy of the Government Discussed. The Committee appointed at the recent meeting at Fancuil Hall, Boston, to prepare an address to the people of the United States, have issued the follow-	nd business and social intercourse of life. This we inderstand to be, in substance, the position which the lovernment new occupies, and we believe the people ecognize it to be of necessity and of right. Let us now, fellow-citizens, turn our attention to our lights and duties. Having succeeded in this war, and tolding the Rebel States in our military occupation, its our right and duty to secure whatever the public faith require. Parts: The principle spirst be put beyond all question,	sistent and multiform counteractions by the late master-class. Appeals may be made to tasts or pride on the subject of the social equality of the people of color. We must not permit our opinions to be warped by such considerations. The present question is strictly one of political justice and safety, and not of social equality. When the free man of color, educated in the common schools, deposits a vote which he can write himself, gives deposition which he can read and sign, and pays a tax	during the day, tenda upward, and under the stim- ulous of continued large earnings, reduced operat- ing expenses and easy money, there is a disposition to buy for an advance. The closing prices were: N. Y. To the People of the United States: In pursuance of the custom of the American people to confer freely with one another in times of civil emergency, and the example of our own ancestors to speak to their fellow-citizens from this place, we have been commissioned by the citizens this day assembled in Fancuil Hall to address you upon the state of public affairs. We claim no peculiar right to be heard, even by reason of the sacredness of the spot from which we speak but the greatness of the exigency, the critical questions	of every citizen, from which no State can absolve him, and to his obedience to the laws of the republic, "any-hing in the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding." Second: The public faith is pledged to every person of color in the Rebel States, to secure to them and their nosterity forever a complete and veritable freedom, having promised them this freedom, received their aid on the faith of this promise, and, by a successful war and actual military occupation of the country, having	parisons between his intellectual, moral, physical or secial condition, and that of the white citizen, of whatever race or nation, who lives, votes or testifies by his side. But the nation has a deep interest in the Freedmen, by themselves considered. The republic must choose to-day between two results. The millions of people of color in the South, no small part of them carrying the best white blood in their yeins, must be either an educated, industrious, land-holding, arms-bearing, tax	ferred, 63‡; Fort Wayne, 99‡. The Prissipert stated that the Mayor had convened the Board of Health to take action in regard to the condition of the streets. He wanted the press to hear in mind that the act which gave the contract for cleaning the streets to Messra. Brown, Devoe and Knapp, was a legisl tive one, that there were certain conditions to be complied with or the contract would cease. That one of these conditions was, "that every street, avenue, lane, dock, or pier" within the limits of New-York "be cleaned at least once every week, and all garbage, ashes, etc., to be removed every 24 hours."

moving steadily in an opposite direction from our own, antil its chire system and (if we may call it so) its civilization have become hostile to and at last inconsistent with our own. In their progress the Southern people had reached a position where it may 1,3 said to have become their settled doctrine, social and pointical, that the people of color are—not by accident and temporarily, but by nature and forever—unit for any other condition than that of absolute slaves. On several militudes of such persons—not all negroes, but in whom white blood, with often but a quarter or an eighth of the African blood—their social fabric rested. When not aggressive, their system was intrenched behind State institutions, where no national authority could treach it. From this condition of things there followed		ment does succeed. We need not be precipitate. The present authority, although resulting from war, may, as we have said, be largely exercised by civil methods and civil functionaries, and be accompanied with the enjoyment of many civil rights and local municipal institutions, executive and judicial. If the present experiment fails, we may try the experiment of building by the people from the foundation, by means of municipal institutions of towns and counties, with the aid of education, commerce and immigration, a new spirit being infused and the people becoming accommodated to their new relations, and so advance gradually to complete restoration.	27 10 1 0 0 0 0 14 1 20 0 man 27 1009 2 537 3481 700 MAI	We also collect Government Vouchers and Drafts, and attend to other business with the Government, P. Slavery, with its effects on what would otherwise have been the laboring class of whites, resulted in a system which is substantially oligarchical. It gave to the masters the advantages of oligarchy, and trained them personally in its habits, sentiments and passions. Slavery and oligarchy do not rest on political economy, but have their sources in the pride and passions of men. They are, therefore, if circumstances at all favor them an ever-wreen danger. This is a system of separate tates, each with separate functions, constituted by he people of each, and self-governing within its sphere, cith a central State constituted by the people of all, such as the self-governing within its sphere, and the final judge of its sphere and functions. The President recognizes the importance of proceeding in accordance with this system. He ims at a restoration of the States, by the people of the States, without resort to the exercise of overeign legislative jurisdiction over them by the	to their new relations, and so advance gradually to complete restoration. This is but one suggestion. Various methods are open to us. Only let it be understood that there is no point at which the Rebels can defy, politically, any more than they could in war, the authority of the Republic. The end the nation has in view is the same as that for which the war was accepted and prosecuted—the restoration of the States to their legitimate relations with the Republic. To support their system in national politics, they invented and used, as a most effectual weapon, the dogma of State supremacy, which they disguised under the name of State Rights. It may, therefore, be fairly said that three ideas had complete possession of Southern society—Slavery, aristocracy and State supremacy.
